From the New York Mirror. FIRST IMPRESSIONS, OR NOTES BY THE WAY. BY NATHANIEL P. WILLIS.

The grand bazaar of Constantinople, and its infinite variety of BRING all the shops of New York, Philadelphia, and Boston, together around the City-hall, remove their fronts, pile up all their goods on shelves facing the street, cover the whole with a roof, and metamorphose your trim clerks into bearded, turbaned, and solemn old mussulmen, smooth Jews, and calpacked and rosy Armenians, and you will have something like the grand ba-zaar of Constantinople. You can scarcely get an idea of it, without having been there. It is a city under cover. You walk all day, and day after day, from one street to another, winding and turning, and tradging up hill and down, and never go out of doors. The roof is as high as those of our three-story houses, and the dim light so favorable to shop-keepers, comes struggling down through sky-lights, never cleaned except by the rains of Strolling through the bazaar is an endless amusement. It is slow work, for the streets are as crowded as a charch-aisle after service; and, pushed aside one moment by a bevy of Turkish ladies, shuffling along in their yellow slippers, muffled to the eyes, the next by a fat slave carrying a child, again by a kervas armed to the teeth, and clearing the way for some coming dignitary, you find your only policy is to draw in your elbows, and suffer the motley crowd to shove you about at their

Each shop in this world of traffic may be two yards wide. The owner sits cross-legged on the broad counter below, the height of a chair from the ground, and hands you all you want without stirring from his seat .-One broad bench or counter runs the length of the street, and the different shops are only divided by the slight partition of the shelves. The purchaser seats himself on the counter, to be out of the way of the crowd, and the shopman spreads out his goods on his knees, never condescending to open his lips except to tell you the price. If he exclaims "bono," or "calo," (the only word a real Turk ever knows of another language) he is stared at by his neighbors as a man would Broadway who should break out with an Italian bravura. Ten to one, while you are examining his goods, the hearded trader creeps through the hole leading to his kennel of a dormitory in the rear, washes himself and returns to his counter, where, spreading his sacred carpet in the direction of Mecca, he goes through his prayers and prostrations, perfectly unconscious of your presence, or that of the passing crowd. No vocation interferes with his religious duty. Five times a day, if he were running from the plague, the mussulman would find time for prayers. The Frank purchaser attracts a great deal of curiosity. As he points to an embroidered handkerchief, or a rich shawl, or a pair of gold-worked slippers, Turkish ladies of the first rank, gathering their yashmacks securely over their faces, stop close to his side, not minding if they push him a little to get nearer the desired articler-feeling not the least timidity, except for their faces, these true children of Eve examine the goods in barter, watch the stranger's countenance, and if he takes off his glove, or pulls out his purse, take it up and look at it, without ever saying "by your leave." Their curiosity often extends to your dress, and they put out their little henna-stained fingers and pass them over the sleeve of your coat with a gurgling expression of admiration at its fineness, or if you have rings or a watch-guard, they lift your hand or pull out your watch with no kind of scruple. I have met with several instances of this in the course of my rambles. But a day or two ago I found myself rather more than usual a subject of curiosity. I was alone in the street of embroidered handkerchiefs, (every minute article has its peculiar bazaar,) and wishing to look at some of uncommon beauty, I called one of the many Jews always near a stranger to turn a penny by interpreting for him, and was soon up to the elbows in goods that would tempt a female angel out of Paradise. As I was selecting one for a purchase, a woman plumped down upon the seat beside me, and fixed her great, black, unwinking eyes upon my face, while an Abyssinian slave and another white woman, both apparently her dependents, stood respectfully at her back. A small torquoise ring (the favourite colour in Turkey) first attracted her attention. She took up my hand, and turned it over in her soft, fat fingers, and dropped it again without saying a word. I looked at my interpreter, but he seemed to think it nothing extraordinary, and I went on with my bargain. Presently my fine-eyed friend pulled me by the sleeve, and as I leaned toward her, rubbed her forefinger very quickly over my cheek, looking at me intently all the while.-I was a little disturbed with the lady's familiarity, and asked my Jew what she wanted. I found that my rubicund complexion was something uncommon among these dark-skinned orientals, and she wished to satisfy herself that I was not painted ! I concluded my purchase, and putting the parcel into my pocket, did my prettiest at an oriental salaam, but to my mortification, the lady only gathered up her yashmack, and looked surprised out of her great eyes at my freedom. My Constantinople friends inform me that I am to lay no "unction to my soul" from her notice, such liberties being not at all particular. The husband exacts from his half-dozen wives only the concealment of their faces, and they have no other idea of impropriety in public.

In the centre of the bazaar, occupying about as much space as the body of the City Hall in New York, is what is called the bezestein. You descend into it from four directions by massive gates, which are shut, and all persons excluded, except between seven and twelve of the forenoon. This is the core of Constantinople-the soul and citadel of orientalism. It is devoted to the sale of arms and to costly articles only. The roof is loftier and the light more dim than in the outer bazaars, and the merchants who occupy its stalls, are old and of established credit. Here are subjects for the pencil! If you can take your eye from those Damascus sabres, with their jewelled hilts and costly scabbards, or from those gemmed daggers and guns inlaid with silver and gold, cast a glance along that dim avenue and see what a range there is of glorious old gray beards, with their snowy turbans! These are the Turks of the old regime, before Sultan Mahmoud disfigured himself with a coat like a "dog of a christian," and broke in upon the customs of the orient. These are your opium-eaters, who smoke even in their sleep, and would not touch wine if it were handed them by houris! These are your fatalists, who would scarce take the trouble to get out of the way of a lion, and who are as certain of the miracle of Mahomet's coffin as of the length of the pipe, or of the quality of the tobacco of Shiraz ! E I have spent many an hour in the bezestein, steeping my fancy in its rich orientalism, and sometimes trying to make a purchase for myself or others. It is curious to see with what perfect indifference these old crosslegs attend to the wishes of a Christian. I was idling round one day with an English traveller, whom I had hanging on one of the stalls, arrested my companion's attention. He had with him his Turkish dragoman, and as the old merchant was smoking away and looking right at us, we pointed to the dress over his head, and the interpreter asked to see it. The mussulmansmoked calmly on, taking no more notice of us than of the white clouds curling through his beard. He might have sat wonders—silent shopkeepers—female curiosity—adventure with a black-eyed stranger—the Bezestein—the strong hold of orientalism—picture of a Dragoman—the kibanb-shop—a dinner without knives, forks, or chairs—cistern of the thous-nod and one redumns. for Michael Angelo's Moses. Thin, pale, calm, and of large old-fashioned turban, and a curling beard half mingled with gray, his neck bare, and his fine bust enveloped in the flowing and bright-colored drapery of the east-I had never seen a more majestic figure. He evidently did not wish to have anything to do with us. At last I took out my snuff box, and addressing him with "effendi!" the Turkish title of courtesy, laid my hand on my breast and offered him a pinch.

Tobacco in this unaccustomed shape is a luxury here, and the amber mouthpiece emerged from his moustache, and putting his three fingers into my box, he said "pekkhe!" the Tarkish ejaculation of approval. He then made room for us on his carpet, and with a cloth measure took the robe from its nail, and spread it before us. My friend bought it unhesitatingly for a dressinggown, and we spent an hour in looking at shawls, of prices perfectly startling, arms, chalices for incense, spotless amber for pipes, pearls, bracelets of the time of Sultan Selim, and an endless variety of "things rich and rare." The closing of the bezestein gates interrupted our agreeable employment, and our old friend gave us the parting salaam very cordially for a Turk. I have been there frequently since, and never pass without offering my snuff-box, and taking a whiff or two from his pipe, which I cannot refuse, though it is not out of his month, except when offered to a friend, from sunrise till midnight. One of the regular "lions" of Constantinople is a kibaub shop, or Turkish restaurant. In a ramble with our consul, the other day, in search of the newly discovered cistern of a "thousand and one columns," we found ourselves, at the hungry hour of twelve, opposite a famous shop near the slave-market. I was rather staggered at the first glance. A greasy fellow, with his shirt rolled to his shoulders, stood near the door, commending his shop to the world, by slapping on the flank a whole mutton that hung beside him, while as a customer came in, he dexterously whipped out a slice, had it cut in a twinkling into bits as large as a piece of chalk, (I have stopped five minutes in vain, to find a better comparison,) strung upon a long iron skewer, and laid on the coals. My friend is an old Constantinopolitan, and had eaten kibaubs before .-He entered without hesitation, and the adroit butcher, giving his big trowsers a fresh hitch, and tightening his girdle, made a new cut for his "narrow legged" customers, and wished us a good appetite; (the Turks look with great contempt on our tight pantaloons, and distinguish us by this epithet.) We got up on the platform, crossed our legs under us as well as we could, and I cannot deny that the savoury missives that occasionally reached my nostrils, bred a gradual reconcilia tion between my stomach and my eyes.

In some five minutes, a tin platter was set between us, loaded with piping hot kibaubs, sprinkled with salad, and mixed with bits of bread; our friend the cook, by way of making the amiable, stirring it up well with his fingers as he brought it along. As Model, says in the play, "In love or mutton, I generally fall to without ceremony," but spite of its agreeable flavor, I shut my eyes, and selected a very small bit, before I commenced upon the kibaubs. It was very good eating, I soon found out, and, my finger white ground, (the you are indulged with neither knife, fork, nor skewer in Turkey,) I proved myself as good a trencher-man as my friend.

The middle and lower classes of Constantinople live between these shops and the cafes. A dish of kibaubs serves them for dinner, and they drink coffee, which they get for about half a cent a cup, from morning till night. We paid for our mess, (which was more than any two men could eat at once, unless very hungry,) twelve cents.

We started again with fresh courage, in search of the cistern. We soon found the old one, which is an immense excavation, with a roof, supported by five hundred granite columns, employed now as a place for twisting silk, and escaping from its clamorous denizens, who rushed up after us to the daylight, begging paras. we took one of the boys for a guide, and soon found the object of our search.

Knocking at the door of a half-ruined house, in one of the loneliest streets of the city, an old, sore-eyed Armenian, with a shabby calpack, and every mark of extreme poverty, admitted us, pettishly demanding our entrauce money, before he let us pass the threshold. Flights of steps, dangerously ruinous, led us down, first into a garden, far below the level of the street, and thence into a dark and damp cavern, the bottom of which was covered with water. As the eye became accustomed to the darkness, we could distinguish tall and beautiful columns of marble and granite, with superb corinthian capitals, perhaps thirty feet in heighth, receding as far as the limits of our obscured sight. The old man said there were a thousand of them. The number was doubtless exaggerated, but we saw enough to convince us, that here was covered up, almost unknown, one of the most costly and magnificent works of the Christian emperors of Constantinople.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1834.

We give below the United States Bank statement for the month of October. The principal items stand as follows, viz :-

Loans on personal security, 34,667,828.24 11,096,373.07 Domestic Bil's of Exchange, -45,754,201 31 Baring, Brothers & Co. 2,628,646.79 15,910,045.31 235,005.50 Redemption of Pub. Debt, Trensury of the United States, Public Officers, Individual Deposits, 429,465.07 1,337,168.06 6,741,752.24 Circulation, Due from other banks, 15,968,731.90 2,036,103.99 2,950,095.48 Notes of other banks. 1,341,094,38

On comparing this with the statement of the 1st of October, it will be perceived that the aggregate of discounts has fallen during the month about a quarter of a million of dollars-that the funds in Europe have diminished nearly half a million-that the specie has been increased about three hundred and sixty thousand dollars, and the circulation has also increased about three handred and thirty thousand dollars. The decrease o loans on personal security has been nearly half a million, while the investment in domestic bills has increased about two hundred thousand dollars.

The following is the state of the Branches in the four principal cities, viz :-

49,071.67 128,953.93	300,000.00 233,176.59	570,477.70 927,744.16	271,881.31 983,575.36	Due from other banks,

1,618,353.94	1,508,427.52 1,275,091.74	5,866,079.44 1,887,331.00	4,728,450.38	Domestic Exchange,

Since the last statement there has been a curtailment in New York of near three hundred thousand dollars upon leans on personal security! What does this mean? Have they been applying the screws to certain debtors, just before the election? What is Mr Biddle's promise to the New York committee now worth, that there should be no more curtailments? And what be comes of the defence, by that hypocritical "Journal of Commerce," which they offered in behalf of the bank, saying that the reduction was alone upon Domestic Bills? Now, the sum of Domestic Bills has increased since the last statement. What apology will they bring forward now?

The struggles of the Bank party for power are not yet over. Thus far, to be sure, that party has been worsted, but it will make renewed exertions for life and dominion. It will prepare itself to renew, so far as it has power, the panic and pressure of last winter .-It will probably time this effort for the period of the Presidential election in 1836. The bank charter will expire in the early part of that year, and under the plausible excuse of calling in its debts, to wind up its affairs, it will attempt, by coercion, to compel the country to yield it a re-charter. The country owes it to itself to guard against the hostile designs of the Bank and its partisans, and the most effectual way to do this, is to cripple its power by crippling its means. Its bills should be sent home-its illegal branch drafts ought to be discredited every where by the government and the people. The trading community ought to refuse its loans, and avoid trading with it on any terms; and the patriotic, every where, should stamp with reprebation, and point the finger of scorn at its feed advocates in Congress, and at those who justified its robbery of the public treasury, in seizing upon the dividends it held Willis .- A very interesting letter from Mr N. P. Willis is upon our first page. We owe our anti-political readers something in the way of amusing miscellany, and shall endeavor to requite them for their forbearance during the late electioneering season as soon as possible

Sherman's Printer's Manual is the title of a neat little volume just published, and devoted, as its title indicates, to an illustration of the mysteries of the Art .-It contains a large quantity of information compressed into a very small space, and is confidently recommended to the attention of the Craft.

Hint to Auctioneers .- Last week, a person residing in the neighborhood of Keswick, having several hives of bees to dipose of, and being desirous to attract purchasers, caused a placard to be printed, announcing the sile, with the following extraordinary head lines: "Extensive sale of live stock, comprising not less than ene hundred and forty thousand head, with an unlimted right of pasturage !" The ruse succeeded.

Intestinal War .- Among the recently-published correspondence of Hannah More, is a letter from Dr Langborne, which so amusingly describes a battle, fought in the Doctor's own domains, between the forces of Disease on the one side, and Medicine on the other, that we cannot forbear copying it. After speaking of his being totally depressed, sunk down, and buried beneath a his being the only professional man who did business complication of rheumatic, scorbutic, nervous, and billious complaints, he proceeds:

"At last matters came to a crisis. General Bile was ppointed commander-in-chief, and led the whole forces of Rheumatism Bay, Scurvy Island, and Nerveus Province, into the very centre and heart of my dominions, and drew up his army in form of battle. I drew up my whole force against him in the following order:

"First battalion, a body of Emetic Tartars, under the command of Gen. Ipecacuanha. Foster's New System of Penmanship .- The rage common sense teaches can be learned in as many weeks, education. Among the teachers of chirography now settled permanently among us, who do not boast of being miracle-workers, is Mr B. F. Foster, formerly of Albany, N. Y. where he resided several years, and receiv- in armour!"-Fred. Reynold's Life. ed the approbation of the first officers both of the state and city. His system is generally approved, and his essay on the best method of teaching penmanship re-ceived the premium of the American Institute of Instruction. The distinguishing features in the system introduced by Mr Foster are as follows :-

1.-The slow and formal-practice of the old system is abandoned, and a series of ingenious exercises substituted, which impart a free, flowing command of the pen ; the letters are executed by the simultaneous movement of the hand and fore-arm combined with that of the fingers and thumb-the arm resting lightly near the elbow-while the third and fourth fingers are used as a meveable support.

2 .- The learner, by this means, attains a mastery of write with ease, elegance and expedition.

tional and philosophical; easily applied to practice and easily acquired. The exercises are, from the first, performed rapidly, and in addition to great freedom and expertness, the habit of writing straight, without lines, is given and confirmed.

4.-The style of writing is bold, free, and businesslike; combining, in an eminent degree, the essential qualities of legibility, uniformity, compactness and acility of execution.

5.-By the old mode, the pupil was wearied and disgusted in laboring over tasks he did not comprehend; in this he is made acquainted with the precise object of each exercise, and by interesting his understanding, his attention is fixed and his curiosity excited, and finding at every lesson, that he is making rapid progress in the art, he requires no further incitement to persevere than the pleasure he receives in becoming, without toil or delay, AN ELEGANT AND EXPERT PENMAN .-American Traveller.

Foreign Miscellany,

Remarkable Reverse of Fortune .- A little elderly borough street office, to relate a tale of abject destitution, and to solicit some trifling temporary succour .cumstance would be atterly incredible, did not the relator produce documents, and refer to individuals of character and station, which entitle him to some attention. with every appearance of poverty about him, could, according to his statement, at one time have been at the head of an establishment rivalling the power of an Asiatic prince, and in possession of wealth exceeding of money, very little short of five millions sterling, of which he states he has been deprived by the East India as follows, referring to Mr Cutlar Fergusson, the East India director, and to Mr Buckingham, M. P., the latter of whom is about to bring his case before the house of commons, as evidences of its truth. He went about twenty-six years ago to the Indies in the capacity of Court -It is not all strange to me, that you don't midshipman. An indigo-merchant of large wealth, named Smith, took a fancy to him, adopted him, and left him the whole of his wealth, on condition of his assuming the name of Smith. Under the name of James Smith, the applicant states he carried on trade as an indigo, cotton, and saltpetre merchant; and his commercial dealings were so extensive, that in 1820 he had upwards of seventeen factories in different parts-that at Hindoostan being the largest in India; and his prophe was accused of having carried on some sort of illegal traffic, in conjunction with the receiver of Cawnpore; and the troops of the East India company seized upon all his factories and property, and left him comparatively sions, he came over to England, and since 1830, has been, as he states, memorializing the East India company, and attempting to establish his claims. In the meantime, all his resources have failed; and to such a pitch of destitution has he been reduced, that for six nights he has been obliged to wander about the streets, for want of the means to procure a bed; and was led to this office almost famished for want of food. The applicant only partially stated the above circumstances to Mr Dyer, as he was stopped by a gentleman, who did not think it was a matter which properly came within the cognizance of a police magistrate. The applicant said he should be compelled to ask a little temporary assistance from the parish as he was wholly destitute.-The applicant left the office, with the intention of coming again on a future day .- London paper.

This medicine is composed entirely of vegetable substances

This medicine is composed en'rely of vegetable substances, is perfectly safe in its operation, and may be given to children or persons of the most delicate habit, without the least risk of inconvenience.

The uniform success which has attended the use of it where it has been extensively used, in Boston and various other parts of the United States, and in the West Indies, attested by disin terested and highly respectable persons, affords, next to a trial of the medicine itself, the best commentary upon its virtues, and the best recommendation which can be offered to those who are unacquainted with it.

Extract of a letter received from a gentleman in Boston, who had suffered severely from indigestion for three years. 'During this time, I suffered very much from mental depression, constant pain in the head and breast, and side, sharp shooting pains over almost the whole system—the food that I are seemed to pass into my lungs and there remain, giving me great pain at over almost the whole system—the food that I ate seemed to pass into my lungs and there remain, giving me great pain at tended with a strong degree of heat. At times, I suffered so much from the pain of indigestion as to be confined to the bed for two or three days. During one of these most severe attacks, I was induced by the advice of a friend to try your Vegetable Medicine. In the course of a few weeks I found myself much better, and by the time I had taken two bottles, considered myself wholly free from the complaint. I continue, on the least feeling of any thing like indigestion or pressure on the stomach, to take about a table spoonful of it, which, in the course of a few hours, completely restores me. It has had with me a very wonderful effect, in strengthening the stomach and invigorating the whole system, and judging by my own case, I consider it in all diseases connected with the digestive organs, to be a very valuable medicine. to be a very valuable medicine.

It has been found singularly efficacious in cases of the most obstinate headache.

It is put up in large bottles containing a pound and a half: and sold at seventy-five cents each, by Jonathan P. Hall, Jr., No. 1, Union street, John P. Whitwell, Milk street, John I. Brown, near Boylston Market, Erastus S. Holden, near the Western Avenue, Richard A. Newell, Summer street, Boston; Samuel Kidder & Co. Charlestown, E. G. Lemon, Roxbury. Samuel Kidder & Co. WATKINS, THOMSONIAN BOTANIC PHYSI CIAN—Infirmary, Harvard street, (opposite 499 Wash ngton street,) Boston—Has been acquainted with and possessed of a right to use Dr. Samuel Thomson's Patent Vegetable Medicine, for the last 21 years, and administered them in Europe, and South and North America, (including the West India Islands.) and with as much success as any other can, (with truth,) boast of. In the nine months' practice he has had at the Hervard street Infirmary, he has not had the misfortune to lose one patient, although many of them had been for years in the hands of the members of the Medical Faculty, and some of them abandoned to their (supposed) hopeless fate. As he is so well known in Boston, it is unnecessary to enter very largely into a detail of success. The following are a few o his patients:—

his patients:—
Stephen Gore, (inquire at Thomas Holland's Beach street, Boston,) totally blind for about 5 months, one eye, nearly destroyed, general debility, legs swollen and lame—appeared completely charged with poisons. General health restored; eye sight good—could see to read (without glasses) in 5 courses,

Mrs Lucinda Kerr, Sea street, Boston, salt rheum; top of the head one entire scab—cured in 4 courses, &c.

A W. cannot be at the expense to enumerate more cases, at present. He has not named cases of fevers, they are almost too ephemeral in the hands of a physician acquainted with his duty—the insurance of such. Delicacy will not not permit the naming of several diseases, which he has treated with universal success. In almost all the cases of diseases which have been treated by him, he has been under the necessity to expel not only the disease, but the poisons which produced and continued them—and all with innocent and harmless simples.

Abbott, Esq., whose name is attached to the following certificate:

"This is to certify, that one of the above described Double Safes, which I purchased of the Messrs. S. A. & W. G. Pierce was in my office in this town when the office was burned on the 2d day of November last—the building was of two stories, wooden, and large. The Safe, weighing 700 lbs. fell from the second story into the cellar, and was exposed to an intense heat for nearly three hours. It was for a long time literally red hot. It contained all the account books, notes, and courtpapers, that were in my office; and no paper was in the least degree burnt or rendered illegible. JOHN S. ABBOTT.

WILLIAM H. ROGGERS, most respectfully invites the attention of Merchant Tailors and the public generally, to his new invented Imperial Stocks for the Neck, which for ease and elegance very far surpass every thing of the kind hitherto manufactured in this vicinity. They are cut scientifically; the materials and manner of making are quite different from those in common use, and they may be covered many times, and retain exactly the same shape as when first made. MOORE'S COOKING STOVES.—GOULD & DAVIS, in Fiske's New Building, in Cambridge-Port, have on hand and are constantly manufacturing Moore's Patent Cooking Stoves, of the most approved form for convenience and economy, of any now in use.

In offering these Stoves to the public, they think proper to say, that having made and sold, between six and seven hundred within the last two years, they can now declare, upon the fullest testimony of those who have used them, that they combine more advantages than any others now in use. They are so constructed, that you can boil in three places and bake at the same time. They have a large hearth convenient for roasting; a good oven combining all the advantages of a brick one, and also, of a common bake-kettle; consume but a small quantity of fuel, and are perfectly free from smoking. In addition to their former patterns they have a smaller size, to which in point of economy and convenience, for small families, there are none considered superior. They request those who may be in want of Cooking Stoves to call and examine for themselves.

DURE BEAR'S OIL may be had by the groce, dozen or single bottle, of A. BOYDEN, Hancock-st.

As in all cases, so especially in this, Venders, if they wish to secure the patronage of the public, should be extremely can tious not to seil an article for the Hair which tends to counteract rather than assist nature,

The virtues of Bear's Oil have been too long tested to need any eulogium; and at this time no one can doubt of its being the very best article for strengthening and promoting the growth of the Hair. An honest prejudice against the use of Bear's Oil has long existed, arising from two causes—the improper method of purifying it, and the imposition upon the public of a spurious article. That this prejudice may be wholly removed, this article now offered is warranted the pure Oil, rendered more pleasant by the addition of a little perfume—and the possibility of its injuring the Hair is entirely precluded by the manner in which it has been purified. To prevent fraud, the genuine is enclosed in two wrappers, the inside one being signed Arnold Boyden.
